

Hand Hygiene in Context

Instructor: Sue Chen, MPH
Infectious Disease Branch
California Department of Health Services

Sue Chen is an infection prevention and control specialist for the California Department of Health Services in the Infectious Disease Branch. Her duties include consultation on infection control matters, input into public guidelines relating to infection control, and education. She has a broad background in both nursing and infection control, including acute, correctional, and ambulatory care, and military settings. She obtained her MPH from UC Berkeley in Infectious Diseases during the last millennium.

Description: In an era of heightened focus of the effects of healthcare-associated infections, antibiotic-resistant organisms, nationwide foodborne outbreaks, and a looming threat of pandemic influenza, hand hygiene (or the lack thereof) is also entering the national awareness. Are you wondering how one could talk about hand hygiene for 90 minutes? Check it out. This workshop will review the whos, whats, whys, and hows of hand hygiene. Practical knowledge and references will be provided. How much do you know?

Date/Time: Wednesday, January 24, 2007, 12:00pm - 1:30pm

Location: Center for Infectious Disease Preparedness
1918 University Avenue, 4th Floor, Berkeley, CA 94704-7350

For more info: Call us at (510) 643-4939 or e-mail cidp@berkeley.edu